

Southwest Peoples

By:
Thea, Izzy, Walter,
Nathan, and Lauren

Houses

The hopi people lived in houses called pueblos. Hopi are made their houses called pueblos out of sun baked clay called adobe. The Pueblos were made on the tops of mesas. Pueblos had ladders to get to the top and they can easily pull them up so intruders can't get in. They had a secret underground room called the kiva, so only boys and men could enter and the girls had nothing.

Mesa
←

Pueblos
→

Food/Farming/Hunting

They got very little water so it was hard to grow crops but they made it work. They practiced dry farming they got all the water they could. They planted the seeds deep in the ground with rocks above it and as the plants grew the roots soak up any water that's left in the ground from rain and flash floods. The rocks keep the water from draining away.

Laws, Rules, and Ideals

- Girls aren't allowed to go in the kiva.
- When the girls are old enough to be welcomed in to womanhood you have to go through a special ceremony.
- Many schools in Arizona are taught their own language in appreciation of their heritage.
- Medicine men and women may devote their lives to fasting and praying

traditions

The hopi women wore squash blossom hairstyle to show that they were old enough to get married. Kachinas were powerful spirits people wearing kachina masks said prayers for good harvest hopi girls got a doll learned about different kachina spirits.

Resources

So the people of the southwest had a lot of resources including turquoise, wool, diy, cottonwood trees and and roots and many other things. The pueblos were made of stone covered with sun baked clay. There was not much else to talk about on the topic of resources.

Recreation

A long time ago O'odham played toka a game played with sticks and a ball . called toka the game is similar to hockey and kids in arizona even still play it today.

Location

The Hopi lived mostly in what is now called northeast Arizona. The Hopi settled by water because it was part of their lifestyle.

The Hohokam lived in different areas of the southwest.

Mesa

Hopi

Pros/Cons

Pros

- When dry farming they use the water that is saved from the little rain, because there is rocks underneath.
- They live mainly along rivers.
- They have stone to build with for houses or fences.
- No social media.

Cons

- With its dry scorching deserts it challenges to people who live on it
- No Netflix or tech
- They didn't get a lot of rain

The End

Thanks for watching!!!